

Sandra Vance

Sandra Vance was born and raised in Fort Worth, Texas. She graduated from Tarleton State University with a Bachelors in Criminal Justice and was then hired on with the Fort Worth Police Department in 2002. She worked patrol in the North and East sides of the city before she promoted to Detective. As a Detective she worked in the Domestic Violence Unit and then transferred to the Economic Crime Unit.

The Economic Crime Unit is responsible for a variety of crimes to include Credit Card Abuse, Fraudulent Use or Possession of Identifying Information, and Forgery. These types of crimes can cover simple stolen credit card issues, as well as larger ones involving groups of individuals who create counterfeit money and credit cards. The Economic Crime Unit also works closely with the Secret Service and the United States Postal Inspectors Office.

Due to the continual expansion of technology and the availability of computers, the crime of Identity Theft is rising at a very fast rate. Detective Vance knows how important it is to be knowledgeable in the area of this fast growing crime and looks forward to providing any information she can on this issue and its common trends.
